NINE ELMS DEVELOPMENT SET TO ROLL OUT NEW SERVICES IN 2018

Nine Elms will add even more services to its diverse lineup in the upcoming year, anticipating new needs for its clients, and changing market trends in 2018.

Las Vegas, Nevada --- 2018 is still a few months away, but Nine Elms Development LLC already has new services lined up for the coming year. While the company currently offers its clients everything from help with FDA-approval to trade show representation in the US, CEO Liese Peterson is convinced Nine Elms can do still more for its clients: “We can’t become complacent – the food industry moves fast, and we need to be ahead of the curve.” To that end, Nine Elms will be adding muscle to its current stock of offerings, positioning itself as more than a service provider. What can a new client expect from the company in the new year?

- Dedicated importing and distribution services
- Permitting support for alcoholic beverages
- Nine Elms-exclusive online retailing, available to clients only

The list may not be long, but it represents significantly more opportunities for those businesses who choose to work with Nine Elms.

Market access is the capstone of the Nine Elms business model. Whether a company is entering North America for the first time, or seeking to increase its current distribution, Nine Elms focuses on connecting its clients to the right people in the right markets, simplifying a task that can be very difficult for small international companies. Paired with industry insights, 20+ years of experience, and the willingness to do the legwork necessary to translate research into revenue, this business model has been highly effective. It has, in fact, earned Nine Elms Development the Las Vegas Business Press Innovation Award for 2017. This being the case, why make any changes? “This is a natural progression,” says Don Peterson, Chairman. “We want more control over the process of product distribution here in the US. It’s better for us, and it’s better for our clients.”

Only time will tell if the new services will be successful. However, if the past is any indication of the future, 2018 may well prove to be banner year for Nine Elms Development.

Nine Elms plans to be present in Cologne, Germany for ISM 2018, which is scheduled to take place January 28 through January 31, 2018. Liese Peterson, Don Peterson, and Business Development Manager Nathan Wilson will be meeting with both current and prospective clients from countries across Europe and Africa. Look for them there.
